Historical Note

Montgomery College, in Montgomery County, is Maryland's oldest and largest 2-year community college. On September 16, 1946, evening classes began in facilities provided by a local high school. In the fall of 1950, the first college-owned campus was acquired in Takoma Park with the purchase of buildings and seven acres which were occupied by the bliss Electrical School early in the century.

In September 1965, a second site, the Rockville Campus, was made a part of Montgomery College. In September 1975, a third campus was opened in Germantown.
